

Cable companies have true monopolies. A more ala carte menu of services would allow consumers more control over their monthly bills. THe ideal would be to decontrol this industry to lower prices in the same way that the phone companies were forced to compete. Television airways belong to the public yet cable access companies are allowed to operate with no competition. That's not only expensive for consumers, it's frustrating and unfair.